As the CNI study neared completion, it was considered by staff officers responsible for its preparation that agencies other than the Department of the Navy might have information which would be of use in completing the project. It was therefore decided that such possibilities should be examined. To that end, the letter of request, supra, was addressed to this Agency (without observing established channel for such communications) [redacted]

d. The action which resulted in CIA receiving the reference was undertaken more in an effort to exhaust all possibilities as a function of completed staff work, than with the real expectation of receiving information from CIA within the time limits required.

4. Inasmuch as deadlines established by JIC and the ONI for preparation of, and contribution to, the study required are so short and in view of paragraphs 2(d) and 3 above, it is recommended that a reply to ONI be dispatched as suggested in Enclosure 1 hereto.
